DISCUSSION ON FILM : GEELI PUCCHI (SLOPPY KISSES)

→ This film says about gender, caste.

present focus : caste.

- Authorial intention may not be our perception of film. Caste may not even be authorial intention.

* Instance from the film:

Dalits are preferred for blue collared jobs
upper castes are preferred for white collared jobs.

* Instance from the film:

prिया's mother-in-law said her to keep in mind who she is talking to because her father-in-law is becoming mahanth.

* The instance of serving tea in different cups

→ caste differences, the way of discrimination have changed, became more subtler. But still exists, has not necessarily gone away.

* The instance of prिया's birthday party, where Bharati was invited, but supposed to work around the house.

→ Is it "caste discrimination" our interpretation (or) is it also Author's intention.

* Mother-in-law's comment about bharti's ancestral work and background.

- These above instances show that this is what Author is trying to convey.

→ Gender roles:

Instance

* No women's washroom in the factory

↳ The assumption that everyone in the factory ~~is~~ are male

This scene ~~pro~~ portray the relationship between gender & space

→ Gender & caste relationship with spaces.

Ex: Bharti's Gender identity is completely ignored in the factory.

→ priya's way of dressing is shown as ultra-feminine

Bharti is shown as more masculine.

→ Gender & caste are Intersectional identities

'Intersectionality' → Given by "Kimberley Crenshaw"

↳ Intersection of different identities

ex: Both Bharti & priya share "Gender" as a intersectional identity.

Ex: sharmaji ki bahu paidhal nhi ja sakti
-psuiga.

- Both Bharti & Psuiga have to face gender based discrimination.

→ Psuiga got the job even though Bharti maybe more qualified.

- Upper caste women, lower caste women have different set of restrictions.

→ Someone who is disempowered in one maybe empowered in other and vice-versa.

- Factory workers
- Data operator

• Assumptions about caste and work (mental / manual) ..

→ subtle discrimination is harder to fight against.

Ex: The way Bharti was rejected for the role of Data operator and selected as factory worker (manual)

- Bharti Mandal
 - caste
 - sexuality
 - Gender
 - class

• Female desire was not necessarily taken seriously.

• "patriarchal setup"

↳ subtle form for patriarchy

ex: she is expected to be a wife, mother etc.

• Gender vs sexuality.

→ marginalized communities: groups that face discrimination due to any identity, maybe caste, gender, religion etc...

→ Forms of vulnerability and marginalization.

→ Intersectionality - multiple marginalities

• Bharti and Priya's friendship

• Food, touch, intimacy

• How do they navigate patriarchy and patriarchal attitudes to them?

• As women

• As a Dalit

• As a Brahmin

• Recreated ideas of womanhood and 'feminine' qualities

• "there are no women here"
